Season's Greetings From Gulf Park College

THE PRESIDENT'S CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

As the years accumulate, it seems that Christmas seasons become less far apart. With age, the years roll faster and faster toward the time when years no longer matter. The children grow up, their children grow up. Where we once looked at father and mother as "big folks," we are now looked upon by our children and our grandchildren in that way. This fact puts each Christmas in different perspective.

The noise-maker and the gay-colored top once meant much to us. Later, it was the tricycle and the roller skates. Then came the bicycle and the convertible. Dropping in on us at different years were dolls of varied sizes and abilities, supposedly adapted to our degrees of maturity. Also clothing to warm and cheer us, jewelry to bedeck us, and stuffed animals to cozy up with.

Gifts we received. Maybe too many. Gifts we gave. Maybe too few. Giving has remained the essential of the Christmas season, whether others did it or whether we did it. Remembering friends, both near and far, at least once a year, has become identified with Christmas.

We give to people. We give to causes. The question we all must answer is what I have to give that is worthwhile, and who or what is a worthy recipient. Our relatives, our friends, our church, our school — these are some recipients we deem worthy of the gifts we can afford to give.

Giving does something for both giver and receiver. It means uplift and encouragement for both. Individuals and institutions both give and receive gifts. Gulf Park College is an educational institution and there are thousands of individuals who have been at one time or another within its sphere of influence. At this Christmas season comes the thought of how much those individuals have received and can yet receive from this institution, and conversely how much those individuals have given and can yet give to it.

The cheeriest and warmest Season's Greetings from the administration and staff of Gulf Park are extended to all our students, former students, and friends everywhere!

A new Dean of Students, Mrs. Lanthe Campbell, came to Gulf Park in August from Tusculum College, Greenville, Tennessee, where she was Director of Public Relations. A graduate of Tusculum, she has done graduate work at the University of Tennessee.

Mrs. Campbell is the widow of the Reverend Robert Bailey Campbell, Episcopal rector. Together they served parishes in Ohio, Virginia, and North Carolina.

Mrs. Campbell's experience with young people and understanding of their problems is evidenced in her wise, yet sympathetic counseling of Gulf Park students.

Mr. James S. Scarborough, instructor of sociology at Gulf Park, is the new Dean of the College. This appointment certainly pleased the students who had the opportunity of knowing Mr. Scarborough last year. We also enjoy having on the campus Mrs. Scarborough, their twin teen-age sons Ronnie and Donnie, and young son Jimmy.

Dean Scarborough holds a Master's degree from Mississippi College. He has the respect of the student body because he is firm, but always fair in his decisions. We are proud to have Mr. Scarborough as our Academic Dean.

Sororities

This year sorority activities were underway the very first week of school. The big innovation in the sorority program was the formation of three new sororities, bringing to six the number of Greek letter social groups on the campus. Members of Delta Alpha, Delta Chi and Sigma Psi split off to create three sister sororities, Theta Alpha, Kappa Chi and Gamma Psi.

The presidents of the six groups make up the Panhellenic Council, which supervises and coordinates all sorority activities.

All new students were rushed by six groups — parties — parties — parties. On Friday night each sorority held informal get togethers, and on Monday night the six groups went all out to provide entertainment for the rushees. Kappa Chi entertained at the Kool Kats Pad, Delta Chi put on a treasure hunt skit, Delta Alpha presented a Campus Report (oh my!), Theta Alpha used School Daze as their theme, Gamma Psi held a Skunk Hollow Reunion with Gamma Psider much in evidence, and Sigma Psi presented Radio Free Gulfport with Mr. I Seeitall reporting on the sorority crisis.

The following Friday evening each sorority held a formal tea for rushees. The teas were truly lovely with each sorority carrying out its colors in table decorations and flower arrangements.

Every rushee received a bid to membership the following week, and formal pledge services were held on Monday evening, October the fifth.

Another innovation this year was a longer period of pledging. During this longer pledge period, sorority presidents and pledge masters worked with the pledge classes, helping them to learn the Greek alphabet, sorority songs, colors, etc., and instructing them in sorority standards.

Traditional "fun" activities took place on Pledge Day when the actives put the pledges through their paces. Numerous "air raids" were called, the changing of the guard took place in front of Elizabeth Hall, and a few pledges even "fell" into junior fountain.

Formal initiation ceremonies were held on Tuesday evening, October 27th, and were followed by a Panhellenic Banquet in the dining room. Dr. James introduced Panhellenic members and officers, and presented Panhel President, Susan Hood, with an orchid corsage. Members of each of the six sororities sang their sorority song, and the banquet concluded with the entire student body singing the Gulf Park Alma Mater.

Five areas of inter-sorority competition will determine the winner of the Sorority of the Year trophy to be awarded at a Panhellenic Banquet in May. These include athletics, Attic Antics, Sorority Sing, Olympics and scholarship.

In the area of athletics there will be five events — volleyball, basketball, softball, tennis and swimming. The volleyball tourney, held in November, saw each sorority fielding its best team in an effort to accumulate points toward the coveted trophy. For several weeks before tourney time ,the six sororities held daily afternoon practices to produce smooth playing, winning combos.

In the first day's play Kappa Chi defeated Sigma Psi and Delta Alpha defeated Gamma Psi. The next day these teams were victorious again, Kappa Chi downing Theta Alpha and Delta Alpha triumphing over Delta Chi. Thus the final day's match saw these two strong teams pitted against one another. This final round was keenly contested, but Kappa Chi took two games from Delta Alpha to become the tourney winners. No doubt Kappa was spurred to victory by the enthusiasm of its cheering section. Non-playing Kappas, nattily attired in their sorority colors of blue and white, gave strong vocal support to the team. Congratulations to Kappa Chi and to runner-up Delta Alpha for a good volleyball tourney.

A Panhellenic Christmas ball was held on Saturday, December 5th, in the Garden Room of the Edgewater Gulf Hotel. Members of the Panhellenic Council were in the receiving line along with Mrs. Campbell, Dean of Students. A good time was had by all at this Christmas dance.

We'll be looking forward to Spring semester with more athletic tournaments and Sorority Sing to bring out the skills and talents of each group. But don't forget those grades, Greeks; scholarship counts too.

ATTIC ANTICS

"Curtain up, lower the lights, Attic Antics premieres tonight!" Yes, the night of November 23rd brought with it that special tingle of excitement which comes only from a stage appearance. It was, however, considerably more than a "tingle" that each sorority member felt as she nervously awaited her cue, for the entire program was a new experience — a challenge. Attic Antics was a new and untried event on the Gulf Park campus, and members of the six sororities had been working to make its premiere a success.

When the sororities met to plan their skits, ideas evolved, were worked into routines, and each group wondered if its skit would be original and appealing. Finally, opening night, and the discovery that no two sororities had planned similar skits. On the contrary, the audience was delighted with the variety, color, and performance of six different productions.

Theta Alpha opened the evening of entertainment with a delightfully zany skit. While operatic diva Susanne Hume sang an aria to end all arias, some wild doings took place backstage. How about that operation and the palm tree that grew and grew and grew?

Sigma Psi's skit, Opening Night, was built on the hazards of show business. The rehearsal was great, but what a performance! Jebby Burleson was a show-stopper with her rendition of "Everything's Coming Up Roses," and the dance chorus was attractive and lively.

Delta Chi offered the serious note for the evening with its patriotic and historic pageant, March Through Infinity. Choral reading from great documents in American history traced our nation's struggle for freedom through the years. With excellent musical accompaniment and unusual lighting effects, this production was most impressive.

Kappa Chi's skit, Cartoon Classroom, was ushered on by two stars from cartoonland, Donald Duck (Beth Bloodworth) and Olive Oil (Lissa Noel). They were perfect "mood-setters," since a fast and frantic school scene ensued which tickled every funny bone in the house. The comically straight-laced teacher (Linda Williamson) tried desperately to maintain order among the slapstick students, and the result was delightful chaos and lighthearted entertainment.

Delta Alpha's courtroom skit was hilarious. Who will ever forget Pebbles? — "I push books." Gamma Psi concluded the program with a mad — mad — mad Carpetbagger sketch.

The "best"? Yes, this was intersorority competition for points toward the Sorority of the Year trophy and the judges made their decision. Sigma Psi took first place honors; Delta Chi, second; and Kappa Chi, third. Dr. James presented a beautiful silver tray to Stephanie Caballero, proud president of Sigma Psi.

Congratulations are due to all sororities for providing a good evening of entertainment. In addition to its entertainment value, Attic Antics provided an opportunity for the members of each sorority to work together toward a mutual goal. As a result of this close comradeship, sorority members not only became better acquainted with one another, but learned the importance of each contributing in some way to the realization of the group's goal. In this case, perhaps the contribution was made through helping with scenery, gathering props, writing the script, or any one of the many tasks involved in producing a skit.

Attic Antics' debut was indeed an overwhelming success in every respect.

THIEVES' CARNIVAL

An extremely delightful program presented this year was Jean Anouilh's romantic comedy Thieves' Carnival. Directed by Nels Anderson, speech-drama instructor, this first play of the season proved to be a tremendous success.

The plot of the play is built upon the complications that ensue when three female members of the aristocracy meet with three dashing scoundrels who consider thieving an honorable profession.

Stately Susanne Hume gave a warm and spirited performance as Lady Hurf, while Beverly Root portrayed the exuberantly romantic Juliette in an inspiringly sincere and tender fashion. Tom Waters, Gulf Park art instructor, carried with his usual excellence the role of chief thief Peterbono, and Sandra Stevens brought an elegant restraint to the role of the beautiful but bored Eva.

In contrast, two very unusual roles were portrayed by Sandra Wedeles and Diane Naeter. Sandra, as the ubiquitous piper, and Diane, as the stammering town crier, added delightfully whimsical touches to the whole proceeding. Other supporting players included India Pickron, Joanna Mayfield, Carolyn Ashworth, Liz Jennings, and Mary Lee Nelson.

Student players as well as male Coast actors provided both the talent and versatility Anouilh's script demanded.

The tremendous amount of variety in Thieves' Carnival was undoubtedly the factor which compelled many students to attend more than one performance of the play's three night run. Frequent and rapid costume changes, appropriate incidental music, lovely stage settings, use of the aisles as acting areas, and fine individual performances were only a few of the contributions which guided Thieves' Carnival to its final magnificence. However, the production's most amazing feature was its power to create laughter one moment and move the audience to the verge of tears the next.

Gulf Park's presentation of Thieves' Carnival was truly an asset to the Parents' Weekend schedule, and a warm and hopeful beginning for this year's drama department.

Ha
daughter, Suzie, graduated from the High School last June and is now a junior at G. P. C. This wonderful gift has contributed much to the enjoyment of many of our programs this first semester. Mr. Christmas was able to provide some unusual musical effects for the play Thieves' Carnival, and the organ added a great deal to the success of our annual Parents' Day. The Ramseyers brought young organ virtuoso David Hewlett to the campus for a special recital in the afternoon, and David also provided the music for the Dad-Daughter Dance. Our sincere thanks go to Mr. and Mrs. Ramseyer for this generous gift.

Campus Improvements

Gulf Park's improvement and development program continues to move forward. A number of improvements were carried out this past summer including an enlarged self-service bookstore located in the library annex, a new faculty lounge, several faculty offices, a new concrete-block residence for the kitchen staff, and a new bridge over the ravine.

The interiors of Lloyd and Hardy Halls were repaired and painted, Lloyd was air-conditioned, and Hardy was rewired. The admissions office was redecorated and refurnished.

Plans for the gradual expansion of the physical plant under a master campus plan designed by architect Fred Wagner have been adopted by the Board of Trustees. The master plan looks toward the construction of a new library, auditorium, dormitory, and physical education building. Preliminary drawings for the new library are already complete.

Editor's Note: Minnie Minchell, a feature primarily of interest to students, bids adieu to Tammy Howl. Henceforth, Minnie's column will appear in our new campus newspaper.

Friendship Room

Last Spring a new dining room made its debut on the campus. Adjacent to the main dining room, Friendship Room provides a lovely setting for small dinner parties. Beautiful fruitwood furniture, oyster walls, crystal sconces, and red carpeting, all combine to give the room an aura of elegance. Three handsome oil paintings by Miss Earle DeVries, art instructor, complement the room perfectly.

Friendship Room accommodates twenty-two people, and is much used for various special occasions. It is ideal for birthday parties, club dinners, and entertainment of guests. Recently Friendship Room was the scene of the President's Coffee on Parent's' Day, a Beta Club dinner for prospective members, and a Jet Maskers dinner honoring the E. Martin Brownes, Shakespearean lecturers.

This new dining room is available, by reservation, to students, faculty and administration.

SHERRIE JOHNSON IS WOMEN'S EDITOR FOR WSB IN ATLANTA

As a little girl, she dreamed of being on radio and television. Every time she washed dishes, she would play act by advertising the soap powder . . . when she brushed her teeth, she sold that brand of toothpaste as she talked to herself in the bathroom mirror. That little girl, who is remembered in her hometown for her "red-hot mama singing, and tap dancing feet is now all grown up and recognized as the personality-plus voice of information on WSB-RADIO in Atlanta. She is Sherrie Johnson, and at age 20, her position as Women's Editor on the 50,000 watt, clear-channel voice of the south, is the most highly respected in the ten Southeastern states.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Johnson, Preston Highway, Sherrie, a native of Louisville, Kentucky, was graduated from Southern High School and Gulf Park College. A major of speech and drama, Sherrie was very active in the theatre during her stay on the Gulf Coast. She had leads in "Bye Bye Birdie," "Blythe Spirit," and "Little Mary Sunshine," and was host of "Meet Gulf Park" on WGCM in Gulfport. As Gulf Park's fashion coordinator, she organized fashion reviews for conventions along the coast, modeled and acted as commentator.

Following graduation from GPC, Sherrie interned at WIMO-RADIO in Winder, Georgia, while studying at the University of Georgia at Athens.

Five feet one and ninety pounds of bubbly enthusiasm, she's easily recognized all over Atlanta by her smiling voice and a warm and friendly personality.

The young lady rubs elbows with celebrities and national dignitaries every day and does so with the ease and grace of a veteran. Several who have impressed her most include Olivia DeHaviland, Tony Randall,

Harv Presnell, Bob Hope, Connie Francis and President and Mrs. Johnson. "The main thing I have to remember," she said, "Is that they are just human. From then on the interview is a cinch! It's delightful raher than dutiful!"

One might say that Sherrie Johnson is a gal who knows where to place her values, not only in appearance but in thought and action. She dresses for the all-American look, considers make-up "gobbly-gook that succeeds only in clogging up the pores" — consequently, wears only lipstick, and takes pride in her clean and shining, shoulder length coiffure. She considers her position at WSB's White Columns on Peachtree a symbol of dignity and feminity, and, consequently, strives to maintain her reputation as that symbol.
